

OVER-FILE STORAGE CABINETS

To avoid messy and congested offices—such as the one above—GF offers this bright new idea in modern storage cabinets. Developed especially for the United States Gypsum Building in Chicago, it is offered by General Fireproofing as an addition to the regular line of filing and storage equipment.

The GF Over-file Storage Cabinet has been designed in four widths to match either two or three letter- or legal-size files—27 inches high and standard 28 inches deep. When installed on GF five-drawer files, the combination unit measures exactly seven feet high, a very popular office partition height.

Simply designed to blend beautifully with today's modern office settings, Over-files will be appreciated even more for their usefulness. They are furnished with an adjustable shelf to adapt to practically any type of storage problem; additional shelves and depth divider are optional if needed. Double-faced units, too, for easy access from either side when used as a room divider.

Functional. Decorative. File reference materials, catalogs and books on the lower shelf, with storage space for seldom-used items on the second shelf—all behind quiet sliding doors that are cheerfully colored to spruce up the office and help boost morale. Look around your offices now—look on top of the file cabinets. Chances are GF Over-files will work wonders for you—functionally and decoratively.

Hardly a business office today does not have a storage problem. Correspondence, records, booklets and similar items may be kept in filing cabinets, but advertising materials, catalogs, bound reports, office supplies, forms, periodicals and other oversized items invariably create problems. No matter where they are placed—on top of a cabinet, behind a bookcase, in a corner, in "dead" storage—they are apt to be forgotten and become "dust-catchers".

Hardly a business office today does not have a storage problem. Correspondence, records, booklets and similar items may be kept in filing cabinets, but advertising materials, catalogs, bound reports, office supplies, forms, periodicals and other oversized items invariably create problems. No matter where they are placed—on top of a cabinet, behind a bookcase, in a corner or in “dead” storage—they become hard-to-reach or in-the-way “dust-catchers”.

GF Over-file Cabinets make use of "wasted" space over banks of files. Frames and sliding doors may be painted in any GF color to match or contrast with files below, adding a decorative note to the units. They can also combine with files to create a seven-foot high room divider, forming semi-private office space. Double-faced units permit access from either side.
